

Wisconsin First State in US to Offer Free Online Courses for Family Caregivers

Tualta Partnership Helps Caregivers Learn New Skills to Support Themselves and Loved Ones

Madison, WI, November 17, 2020 – The Wisconsin Department of Health Services (DHS) and the Greater Wisconsin Agency on Aging Resources (GWAAR) today announced a partnership with Tualta, a new free online educational tool for family caregivers across the state. Tualta helps caregivers learn about health issues, care techniques, and managing care for loved ones during flu season and the COVID-19 pandemic.

“As winter months approach and cases of COVID-19 continue to rise in Wisconsin, family caregivers face increased isolation and may need extra help caring for friends and family members with serious health conditions. This program provides caregivers with the opportunity to learn new skills in the comfort of their own homes,” said DHS Secretary-designee Andrea Palm.

Sponsored by DHS, GWAAR, and the Dane County Area Agency on Aging, this partnership with Tualta can help individuals needing care live at home longer. Family caregivers can visit WisconsinCaregiver.org and click on the “Tualta” banner on the main page to sign up for access to Tualta’s library of online resources. The modules teach caregivers how to safely provide hands-on care, connect families with reliable support agencies, and offer information and video training from experienced professionals in a quick and easy format. For low-vision users or for caregivers who prefer audio instructions, Tualta also offers a “read to me” function.

“Caregiving is 24 hours a day, seven days a week, so making time for in-person training and education can be difficult, even during normal times,” said Jane Mahoney, Caregiver Support Specialist, Greater Wisconsin Agency on Aging Resources. “Our partnership with Tualta provides an alternative for education and training that people can access whenever it works for them.”

In Wisconsin, family caregiving is expanding rapidly. By 2040, the 65+ population will grow by 640,000 – an increase of 72% – according to The Governor’s Task Force on Caregiving Report released last month. The tasks caregivers are expected to perform have become more medically complicated, making preparation and access to reliable training increasingly important.

“Our goal is to equip family caregivers earlier so that they are better prepared. Most people find themselves responsible for the care of another person with little warning. In the midst of a global pandemic, we realize that caregivers need easy access to innovative resources that complement the training, emotional support and respite services provided by Aging and Disability Resource Centers (ADRCs) and health care providers,” said Lynn Gall, Family Caregiver Support Programs Manager, Wisconsin Department of Health Services.

Anyone caring for an older adult can benefit from Tualta’s support, whether they are seeking personal care training, safety and fall prevention tips, help caring for a person with dementia, caregiver wellness ideas, or other support.

“We are proud to partner with the state of Wisconsin to help family caregivers feel confident and keep loved ones at home longer, particularly when the health care system is overburdened with COVID-19,” said Jonathan Davis, Founder and CEO, Tualta. “Family caregivers provide 80% or more of care for loved ones, and we anticipate that will continue to rise during these challenging times.”

“Dane County caregivers, like those across the state, are busy, and often their time is not their own. Web-based training with experts is especially critical during COVID-19, when many in-person opportunities are not available,” said Angela M. Velasquez, Aging Program Specialist, Area Agency on Aging of Dane County.
